I'm a big fan of music. I will literally listen to anything. I grew up on classic country, played drums to Rock n Roll, sang classic hymns in church, danced (shh, don't tell anyone) to pop and rap tunes in middle school and high school, and listened to loads of classical music while taking Music Appreciation in college.

I love when a great song triggers emotions, memories, and a little motion in idle feet. The pregame performance of the Golden Band from Tigerland (I will admit that it even gives me goose bumps.) Amazing Grace played on the bag pipes. The new Justin Timberlake song from the movie "Trolls." Just ask my 14 year old son, I can't help but move to that song.

Over the last few weeks I have been reminded of a song by one of my favorite bands, The Foo Fighters. I wouldn't exactly call them a Christian band, but neither were many of the classic country songs or Rock n Roll songs I listened to as a kid. A few years ago they were in New Orleans and wrote a song based on their time there after Hurricane Katrina. The title of the song is, "In The Clear," and I want to share some of the lyrics with you...

There are days I might not make it There are days I might start breaking

*But when the rain starts coming down as heavy as the air You can find me dancing with the spirits in the square
There are times I feel like giving in There are times I begin to begin again
Look outside the world keeps spinning like a paddle-wheel Rolling for the broken-hearted waiting on the heal
There are places I don't remember
There are faces I don't remember How could I forget you painted stars into the sky Coming like a rebirth marching in a second line
You know I'm not in the clear
You are not in the clear Don't you go count me out now,
dear*

Things are better than they were a mere 4 weeks ago. There is still a lot more work to do. More papers to file. More cleaning. More rebuilding. We may not be in the clear, but we ARE in the hands of the one who painted the stars into the sky. Progress is being made. We may be down, but we are not out. Blessings are still here and still yet to come.

Pastor Search Committee Report

By unanimous consent and with complete faith in the whispers of the Spirit, it is with great joy that we bring the name of Dr. Leonard Ezell before the congregation for confirmation as our next pastor. Leonard comes to us from Northwest Baptist Church in Ardmore, OK and will be preaching in view of a call on September 25.

The congregation will have multiple opportunities to meet and greet Leonard and Stephanie in the days preceding that service. The schedule of events for September 23-24 will be published on the website and in other church media as soon as it is completed and confirmed.

In the meantime, we have posted an in-depth informational booklet on our website at broadmoorbaptist.com and will make printed copies of that booklet available through the church office. In addition, the PSC will hold a Q&A Session in conjunction with Bible Study on both Wednesday nights prior to the visit.

Here is number eight of the Ten Commandments for Welcoming a New Pastor, by Brian McClaren:

(8) Thou shalt increase thy giving, and not withhold thy tithe, but invest thy money and thine heart in the future of thy community of faith and mission.
