"God Sets You Free"

Psalms 113-118 are called the Hallel (meaning praise) psalms, and were sung during the celebration of Passover. Just prior to His arrest, Jesus probably sang the words "Out of my distress I called on the Lord, the Lord answered me and set me free" (Ps. 118:5). He trusted God to set Him free from a terrible distress.

In what way did God set Him free? For Jesus, freedom was the removal of a cross ("take this cup from Me"). For the Father, freedom was the courage to rise from that prayer and face the most difficult test anyone has ever faced. Jesus accepted that freedom, and went to the cross.

As you face a measure of "the day's own trouble" (Mt. 6:34), this psalm of praise can help you.

First, reclaim the powerful truth that because Jesus was tested, He is able to help you in your test (Heb. 2:18). He knows from very personal experience what it is like for a human being to experience distress. Through the incarnation, God's sympathy became empathy. He knows and understands the trouble you are facing.

Second, call on the Lord. Prayer is your lifeline. It connects you to spiritual resources God makes available to you. You were not created to meet your present distress through knowledge or experience. You were created to meet your distress in fellowship with God. Even Jesus did not try to live without prayer! Share your distress with God. Tell Him about it.

Finally, trust that God hears and will set you free, and trust God for the form of that freedom. Many times God has provided a solution I could not have anticipated. Other times God has allowed the distress to remain, but has provided me courage to face that challenge. In that experience I have grown. I have learned to thank Him for any expression of freedom He provides.

Jesus sang, and perhaps prayed, these words during His greatest test. You certainly should pray them during your present distress! Literally repeat them as you pray (praying the psalms is actually a great spiritual discipline). Through this prayer you will rediscover, "with the Lord on my side I shall not fear" (Psalm 118:6).

Grace,
Terry Ellis
