"Plant What You Want"

The concept of planting what you want is so simple and natural that Jesus readily grabbed it for his life-lessons. He wanted us to have eyes to see extraordinary in the ordinary stuff of life. Farming was no longer just about growing food; it was about growing a kingdom. Seeds weren't merely packets with the potential to feed, but packets with the potential to save. Not unlike his instruction to take our eyes off him and notice ... birds and flowers. These, too, are loaded with lessons. Ordinary things that have something to do with God's purpose for us.

Because Jesus elevated ordinary stuff, we have done the same for our Stewardship theme. It is quite simple: plant what you want. On the level of farming food, it means that, if you want watermelon, then plant watermelon seeds. If you want petunias, then plant petunia seeds. On another level, if you want to be good at business, then plant seeds that grow the skill of business. Or if you want to be good at languages, then plant seeds that grow the skill of languages. On another level, it may mean that, if you want to be wise, then plant seeds of wisdom. Or, if you want to be patient, then plant seeds that grow patience. Here's one: if you want to be remembered for generosity, then plant seeds that make you generous. If you want to be faithful, then plant seeds that make you faithful.

We know what it looks like to plant literal food and flower seeds. But what does it look like to plant "faithfulness" seeds? It depends on what you think "faithfulness" looks like. If faithfulness looks like showing up when you are needed, then planting "faithfulness" seeds looks like ... showing up. If generosity looks like sharing your time or gifts or money, then planting generosity seeds looks like giving. It is really quite simple and natural.

Plant what you want. That is, plant what you want to grow. What do you want to grow at church? When you know what that is, then you – not someone else – you plant what you want to grow. Plant it, water it, nurture it – tend to it. Sometimes we hear people say, "I wish we could do ..." or "I wish we had a more ..." What? One thing is certain, if we don't plant it, we won't get it. That is all we're asking for this Stewardship Season: Plant What You Want. Like the parable of the talents, Jesus would prefer we "plant," or risk the "talents" (word for money), and trust it to the soil/God, rather than conserve it and protect it. We know how that turns out for the one who hides it, instead. God can make good farmers of us all!

GET INVOLVED

LSU Gospel Choir

Thursday, November 13, 7:30 P

The LSU Gospel Choir presents its fall concert at Broadmoor Baptist Church, Thursday, November 13, 2025 at 7:30pm. The LSU Gospel Choir was formed in 1978, admitting students without audition. This choir is part of a component that expands the school's musical offering and increases the opportunities for diversity of music exposure and expression across the university community.

In 1996 the LSU Gospel Choir toured France, playing to sell out audiences in more than 5 cities, including Paris. The LSU Gospel Choir was recently honored as a historical treasure here at LSU and was featured in a documentary honoring the late A.P. Tureaud, Sr.

The November 13th concert will feature contemporary and traditional gospel music selections from Donald Lawrence, Timothy Wright, Richard Smallwood and more. Members of the Broadmoor Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir will combine with the LSU Gospel choir for a special performance of Todd Dulaney's "King of Glory" and feature LSU student and Broadmoor Baptist Church choral intern Layla Battley. The concert is free and open to the public.
